Who Is The Creator Of Teds Woodworking Course?

Ted McGrath aka Ted Woody McGrath, who is a certified master woodworker, educator, and a member of AWI is the person behind the program called Teds Woodworking. He first thought about this when he went through a few magazines looking for plans and they ended up useless with little to no information.

The plans were not specific and left out vital information. Also, they were no help to beginners who had no experience in the craft. Being a trainer and an author, that's when he decided to put together tens of thousands of plans he and his students drew during his 25+ years of experience and create this program.

Ted's Woodworking offers 16,000+ courses for DIY woodworking. Learn to craft dog houses, birdhouses, and more with precise instructions and straightforward design plans. Succeed in carpentry with the right training.

Teds Woodworking Customer Reviews: What Do The Users Say?

The most noticeable factor while going through Teds Woodworking customer reviews is that it is the level of detail and clarity that attracted the customers to it in the first place. The number of plans, price, and all other advantages only come next to it.

The instructions and schematics are in-depth and touch every corner and edge of every single project giving them the experience of working with a master woodworker in the room. Some of them who started the projects as a hobby have now turned it into a full-time business that earns good money.

A few are not happy with the seller's decision to increase the price and add a monthly subscription fee in the future. Except for that, they are all pretty much happy with Teds Woodworking results, and for some, it turned out to be better than they had hoped.

They are glad to have a range this vivid to choose from and suggest it to anyone interested in woodworking.

Teds Woodworking Pricing, Purchase Options And Availability
